The Fourth Session of the Web for Development Conference
Nairobi, Kenya, November 28-30, 2007

1. Title of Workshop: My Space for Social Good
2. Date, Time and Location: 29 November 2007, C-13, 11 – 13 Hours
3. Number of Participants: 15

Speakers: Patricia Sudi, Erick Ochieng Otieno and Sean Amos patsbo@takingitglobal.org seanamos@yahho.com
eribros2003@yahho.com

Rappoteur Kibe Muigai, Kibe.Muigai@unhabitat.org

Case study – Taking IT Global i.e. using IT to connect the youth on development matters

Lessons learnt – what went right and wrong
Outreach can be increased by applying other media of communication apart from internet
There is need to avail computers, and partner with other organisations for exposure to share positive results. There were cases of spam and conmanship leading to almost criminal activities.

Challenges of using the Internet for the broader development area
Challenges included language barrier, fear of individuals that their profiles will be misused, internet insecurity, low literacy levels outside Nairobi, and slow implementation of ICT policies by the government.

Key actors
Local and international development agencies, youth groups, professionals, student community

Way forward
- Creation of partnerships
- Resources mobilisation
- Involving more actors from the community
- Link to the media and ministry departments
- Create local connections in eastern Africa
- Enhance web filtering and system administration